Competitive Frontiers: Women Managers in a Global Economy

This volume brings together an international team of academics and practitioners to trace the changing nature of world business and its impact on the role of female managers. The book reviews the role of female managers working within their own countries, as well as those working across national boundaries. It takes a global perspective by looking at women managers in Asia, Europe, the Middle East, Africa and North America. Contributions are from countries worldwide including: Indonesia; Taiwan; Finland; Germany; Poland; and Zimbabwe.
